

principles

We share an unconditional determination to discover and develop the creative impulses of our performers, fostering self-expression and supporting all members to realize their unique creative potential.

We facilitate and demonstrate the creative abilities of people with disabilities and work to make disability culture an active presence in the wider community.

Kaurna Welcome at International Disability Day 2005

community-based

We're a theatre company of people affected by disability, and we perform on stage, back stage, and in the office. Founded in 1993, we produce locally, tour nationally (sometimes overseas) and discover new talent in weekly workshops tailored to the individual needs of participants. We create original theatre works through the unique perspectives of our members.

Everyone is welcome.

professional productions

We present an average of one new production a year, collaborating with theatre professionals to produce stage works of style and presence -- adventurous, imaginative, entertaining. New performers are discovered and trained in weekly community workshops.

recreational workshops

We conduct community drama workshops throughout metropolitan and suburban Adelaide. We work with people of all ages, across all areas of disability and disadvantage, and employ tutors who are theatre trained and disability experienced.
